

Hey everyone, there's been some discussion lately about how LBB is being somehow "anti-union" because we're removing union posters from our restaurants. LBB has carefully reviewed store practices regarding employee posting of solicitations, and we want to clarify our position. Employees may post informational material — either about the pros or cons of unionization — in employee break areas not visible to the public